Bellberry's Consumer and Community Advisory Panel (CCAP) assists researchers by providing consumer and community perspectives at the early design stage of human research.

The panel consists of people with lived experience of different conditions (as well as a scientific advisor) who review study documents and provide feedback from a consumer perspective.

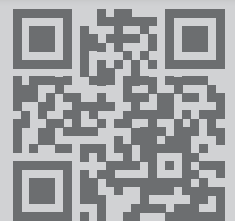

Bellberry is bringing our streamlined, quality and timely ethical review processes into animal ethics.

Our Animal Ethics Committees (AECs) provide review of pre-clinical studies towards human health, as well as for animal health research.
